To drive the local economy, the International Trade Centre (ITC) and Subcontracting and Partnerships Exchange (BSTP) launched the BOKE linkup, an initiative that facilitates connections between mining companies and aspiring entrepreneurs in the Boké region. The event gathered talented individuals from both sectors, and various stakeholders in the mining sector, including mining companies, technical and financial partners, banks, and insurance companies.

With a primary goal to spur economic growth within the community, the linkup provided an unparalleled opportunity for local entrepreneurs to showcase their ingenious projects and novel business concepts to established mining companies. Mining industry representatives engaged in dynamic presentations, round table discussions, and networking sessions, forging potential partnerships with local entrepreneurs.

The event not only underscored the inherent value of collaboration but also emphasized the mining companies' commitment to corporate social responsibility. Sharing their initiatives to support and empower local entrepreneurs, the companies discussed vital components such as mentoring programs, funding opportunities, and training schemes, all geared towards fostering sustainable and inclusive growth in the region.

The BOKE linkup displayed that this synergy between mining giants and ambitious local entrepreneurs holds the potential to drive transformative change and pave the way for a resilient economic landscape in the community.
